Bivocational Adjustment (if applicable)

If the pastor serves bivocationally, the following applies:

- Workload: Reduced hours (e.g., 20–30/week). Prioritize preaching, teaching, and spiritual leadership.

- Delegation: Pastoral care, administration, and music may be shared with deacons, committees, and volunteers.
- Compensation: Salary adjusted proportionally, reviewed annually by the Personnel & Finance Committee.
- Availability: Pastor communicates clear office hours and boundaries; deacons provide additional support when needed.

Accountability & Support

- The Pastor is accountable to the church body, working closely with the Deacons and the Personnel Committee.
- The Personnel Committee will organize and facilitate quarterly check-in meetings to provide encouragement, assess progress toward goals, and identify areas of needed support.
- Additional participants (such as the Deacon Chair or key ministry leaders) may be invited to specific check-ins or evaluations when their input would be beneficial.
- An annual written evaluation will be conducted following the Pastor Evaluation & Accountability Framework, summarizing achievements, challenges, and goals for the coming year.
- These processes are designed to promote open communication, unity, and spiritual health rather than performance-based criticism.
- Church leadership and members will offer prayer, grace, and support for the pastor's spiritual, personal, and vocational growth.

Expectations for Character & Lifestyle

- Maintain a daily walk with Christ, modeling personal devotion, prayer, and holiness.

- If serving in a bivocational capacity, expectations for preaching, teaching, and availability will be clearly defined and documented in coordination with the Personnel Committee.
- Details regarding workload, delegation, and compensation will be guided by the church's Bivocational Adjustment Plan to ensure transparency and mutual understanding between the pastor and church leadership.

Terms of Service

The Pastor serves until the relationship is dissolved by resignation or church action in accordance with the Constitution & Bylaws.
